

In you, I feel complete

I come to you in the silence,
running away from the everyday noise.
Because in you, I find peace.
In you, I feel complete.

I come to you escaping the questions,
friends and family asking why
I want to give you my life.
You do not question me.
As you receive my prayer, I find calm.
In you, I feel complete.

I come to you for forgiveness,
because before I saw myself as virtuous and perfect.
Now I see my faults and how often I fall short.
You accept me as I am, with my "constantly trying to be better."
In you, I feel complete.

I come to you with a thousand questions,
why me? Why now? How can I do this?
What would others say?
Am I worthy? What if it does not work?
You ease my mind and quiet my heart.
You answer my questions over and over again.
In you, I feel complete.

I come to you afraid of keeping going on this path
You open my eyes and show me
so many others on the road.
Your patience refreshes me.
In you, I feel complete

I cry – my God, help me to trust you.
You hold my hand.
In you, I feel complete
